Dental problems in dogs and cats can vary greatly. Often the diet, regular care, and sometimes, genetics have an influence. For example, especially small and short-nosed dog breeds often suffer from dental problems.

Regular dental care for our pets not only ensures beautiful teeth, but also protects against muzzle breath, plaque, tartar and all its negative consequences. But not every animal accepts the toothbrush. A simple and excellent alternative to the toothbrush offers dentaVet AntiPlaque Gel. The gel is only applied to the teeth. Through the subsequent reaction, licking with the tongue, brushing is done all by your pet alone. Thus, dental care becomes a stress-free routine. With regular use, the teeth are cleaned so gently, possibly adhering plaque dissolved, and protected from plaque.

dentaVet AntiPlaque Gel contains natural care substances that promote optimal muzzle hygiene. Zeolite, like many mineral earths, can act as a purely natural filter. Its binding property harmonizes the muzzle flora by absorbing bacteria and acids. Due to the combination with Ascophyllum nodosum, the existing plaque is gently dissolved. The valuable essential oils of frankincense and fennel, penetrate deep into the muzzle cavity, unpleasant breath odor is reduced and the natural muzzle flora is supported.
